SIX WEEKS TESTS

Both goals fit

The two-weeks-Fusion / two-weeks-code rhythm gives 38 Fusion days. Take out the two test days that land in Fusion weeks and you still have 36 working days for a 30-day course — six days of slack for absences, fire drills and short weeks. 30 Days of Fusion finishes inside Semester 1.

The rules that keep it working

Read before adjusting

- Code days are self-contained. Each day is one finished freeCodeCamp item, so a lost day never breaks the next one — students resume exactly where they stopped.
- Fusion days are sequential. 30 Days builds on itself. If a week gets eaten, take the make-up day out of a code week, never out of Fusion.
- The six weeks tests only cover what has actually been taught — Test 1 is design process + JavaScript Module 1 + the first days of Fusion. Nothing else.
- Accounts are set up once (Week 3 Wednesday for freeCodeCamp, Week 5 Monday for Fusion). Any student without a working account cannot start, so that day is protected.

What students finish by December

TRACK	OUTCOME
Fusion 360	All 30 days of Learn Fusion 360 in 30 Days for Complete Beginners (Product Design Online) — sketching, modeling, assemblies and joints, 2D drawings, rendering, and a final project file.
freeCodeCamp	JavaScript Certification modules 1–5 and into Loops — variables, strings, booleans and numbers, functions, arrays, and objects, with graded module quizzes.
Engineering practice	A full design cycle with a defended design review, plus three six weeks tests.

Dates from the Da Vinci 2026–27 academic calendar (1st day Aug 10; Labor Day Sep 7; six weeks end Sep 18, Oct 30, Dec 18; Veterans Day Nov 11; Thanksgiving Nov 23–27). Fusion course: Product Design Online, free on YouTube.
